International study on university students' views on nature and animals

We invite you to partake in an online survey exploring university students' views of nature and animals.

We are interested in your views on nature and animals in general. We also ask about your experience, or lack of experience with some specific animals, how you think and feel about them, and your opinion on how responsible authorities should best act.

The specific animals included in our questions are dogs, wolves and so called wolf-dog hybrids. Your answers are equally important regardless if you are familiar with wolf-dog hybrids since before or not.
